High-Priced Beans.

Tom Watrous, commercial traveler, stopped off at the Marshall (Mich.) eating-house several years ago.

He was not very hungry and called for a plate of beans, which he received. He inquired the price, and was informed that it was 75 cents.

"That's a thundering price for beans," said Tom.

"That's the price," said the proprietor.

The train was just starting; Tom paid the bill, and the coaches bore him and his indignation on toward Detroit.

This was on Saturday. On Monday, Gilmore, the eating-house man, received a telegram, collect on delivery, $1.25, which he paid, and read on opening it:

"A thundering price for beans."

Thirty days from that date a neat express package was handed in to Gilmore, C. O. D., who paid 90 cents for the privilege of opening it to discover a lot of seaweed, on the top of which lay a slip of paper with the calligraphic symbols: "A thundering price for beans!"

Two months from this Gilmore was summoned to Chicago to meet a former business partner, and the hotel clerk handed him a letter conveying the pleasant information: "A thundering price for beans!"

During Gilmore's absence his son paid for two telegrams and one express package, all bearing directly on the subject of 75 cents being "a thundering price for beans!" Cost of these articles, $3.80.

A genuine telegram from Gilmore's mining-share broker advising him to sell was refused, and the loss of it entailed an actual damage to Gilmore of $1,500.

A year rolled away. Gilmore ordered a case of Mackinac trout from Detroit. They came C. O. D., $13.83; when opened he found every fish had been removed from the ice and sawdust, and a shingle met his eyes, marked with a blue lead-pencil: "A thundering price for beans!" Trouble arose between Gilmore and the Detroit fish house, and they went to law, Gilmore winning the suit, $25 damages, and at a cost for attorney's services of $86.90.

Gilmore grew dejected. Life looked gloomy. Letters poured in on every one of his family at regular intervals from all parts of the world, bearing the unpleasant information that it was "a thundering price for beans!"

At last Gilmore sold the Marshall eating-house and moved to Chicago. He carried his deep affliction along with him, gnawing like a cancer at his vitals. The persecution never ceased. Gilmore drooped, faded, and finally died. The terribly afflicted family followed him to his last resting place, and the widow, with what little money she had saved from the expenses of bogus telegrams and express packages, erected a plain marble slab to the memory of the tortured Gilmore.

The following Sabbath the mourning family went out to the cemetery to plant some violets on Gilmore's grave. Arriving on the ground, they observed in silent horror that another legend appeared above the name of Gilmore, on the tombstone. It was chalked on a small blackboard and read:

A THUNDERING PRICE FOR BEANS.

—Central City Item.

The Penny Saved.

An English proverb says: "A penny saved is a penny gained" has long been one of England's standing proverbs. The problem of late years has been how to save the penny. The Postoffice Savings Bank would not take less than a shilling, and other banks that would take the smaller coins were distrusted since the failure of so many banks during the English hard times. So the penny was very apt to drift into the dram-shop. Mr. Pawcett saw—although physically a blind man—the need that existed of giving the above proverb practical value, so he is now testing a plan for saving the penny. By application the postoffice an oblong card can be obtained containing twelve spaces the size of a penny stamp. The stamps are bought, one by one, and stuck on this card till there is a shilling's worth on the card, then the stamped card is taken at the postoffice, and the holder credited with the shilling. Six rural counties were selected as the place of trial, and 14,000 accounts were opened at once. The plan was recently extended to all England, and now 70,000 persons have taken cards.

"Is there a letter here in a scented envelope for my wife?" he asked the postmaster, while the green fires from his eyes made the office look like a leafy forest. "Yes, sir," answered the postmaster, and he handed it out. The jealous man tore it open at once, when lo! and behold! it was the milliner's bill for $50. No succeeding chapters.

BITS OF INFORMATION.

The first records we have of geographical knowledge are in the Pentateuch and in the Book of Joshua.

Anthracite coal was first discovered in the Lehigh valley, Pennsylvania, in the year 1791, by a hunter named Philip Gauthier.

The Mohammedans are the most numerous sect in the world by at least 100,000,000. The Buddhists are next in number, being estimated at 360,000,000.

The word Fenian is derived from Finian or Fint, the old militia of Ireland, so called from Finian or Fingal, a popular hero of Irish traditionary history.

The paving of streets is of early date. The Romans paved their streets in a very elaborate and solid manner. Portions of the pavements still remain, and are in use to the present day; and the pavement of Pompeii remains entire.

In the whole continent of America there are 47,200,000 Catholics and 30,000,000 Protestants. In the United States there are the following church organizations and church settings:

Churches.	Sittings.
Roman Catholic	1,437
Baptist (regular)	1,474

Copied is said to have been first used as a drink at Aden, thence introduced into Egypt, and thence into Turkey. An African traveler mentions that the coffee tree was taken by the Jesuit missionaries to the western coast of Africa, where it has since become naturalized, and covers vast spaces of waste land. It was introduced in England in the early part of the seventeenth century.

The expression "humbug" is a corruption of the word Hamburg, and originated in the following manner: During a period when war prevailed on the Continent, so many false reports were manufactured at Hamburg that at length, when any one would signify his disbelief of a statement, he would say: "You had that from Hamburg," which soon crept into humbug, and has become a common expression of incredulity.

There is little or nothing known with certainty in regard to the invention of glass. Some of the oldest specimens are Egyptian, and are traced to about 1,500 years before Christ (by some 2,300 B. C.). Transparent glass is believed to have been first used about 750 years before the Christian era. The credit of the invention was given by the ancients to the Phoenicians. The story is a familiar one, of the Phoenician merchants, who rested their cooking pots on blocks of natron (a carbonate of soda) and found glass produced by the union, under heat, of the alkali and the sand on the shore.

The first locomotive engine ever seen in the United States was one imported from England in the spring of 1829. It was built by George Stephenson at Newcastle-upon-Tyne. It was put upon exhibition in the yard of E. Duncomb, Water street, New York, on its arrival here.

The first locomotive that was used on an American road was one brought from England early in the summer of 1829, and in two or three months it was running on the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company's road. The first steam locomotive engine constructed in the United States was built by the Messrs. Kemble, New York city.

An Indian and Ague Cure.

A part of the story on a recent excursion, came from a company of Indians who were on the same. One old squaw who was carrying material for baskets of rattan pattern, was quite sociable. In the course of our conversation, she told us an Indian lady had the fever and ague.

"What do you do for it?"

"Oh, we do what they tell us—we take something—I can't think what they call it."

"Quinine," we suggested.

Here a big Indian, who was within hearing, put in:

"That's poison—ugh!"

And the squaw replied:

"No, no; we don't take that."

"It goes to the bones," said the man.

"Yes," he continued, "quinine will kill—settle in your bones—make you ache."

We inquired what he considered the best remedy. Upon which our Indian sage replied:

"Grated horse-radish, one-half cup; whisky, half pint; mix; take a spoonful three times a day—no fail—will cure you." After a moment he added, "It's heating;" which we do not in the least doubt.—Oncida Circular.

A Question of Tests.

"You see," observed Dr. Slim, as he banged the patient across the back of the neck with a club, "you see plainly, gentlemen, that there is no organic difficulty. The functions are natural, and this is a plain case of hysteria."

"I don't know about that," said Dr. Stout, kicking the woman a fearful lick under the ear. "She may not manifest it, but there is certainly sensation there."

"If you notice," chimed in Dr. Green, dropping a handful of bricks on the subject's head, "she does not act as though she were conscious, though that may result as much from hysteria as from spinal derangement."

"This test," remarked Dr. Sapp, as he started a charcoal fire on the woman's stomach, "has been found infallible. If, under this treatment, she kicks, it is hysteria. If she don't kick, we find that even more potent tests must be applied."

"In that case my system is the one to employ," said Dr. Flat, running a lightning rod through the patient. "Under this treatment we inevitably arrive at results."

"I'm not sure, but what we will have to resort to heroic remedies," suggested Dr. Grey, emptying a gallon of vitriol down the woman's throat. "These mild tests do not appear to conduce to conclusions."

"Have you noticed any peculiar symptoms?" asked the faculty in chorus of the weeping husband.

"Only—one—gentlemen," sobbed the spouse.

"What was that?"

"She—died about—twenty-four hours ago!"

And the question now is whether she died of hysteria or spine, with a preponderance of evidence on both sides.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Doctor's Witness.

A certain physician brought suit against a man who had been his patient, for the recovery of the amount of fees charged in his bill. The patient pleaded, in defense, that the doctor had visited him many times after he was entirely well, or, at least, after he—the patient—had declared that he did not need him. He was willing to pay for those visits which had been made while he was really sick; but not for visits which had been persistently made after he was just the same as well. He had been blessed with the attendance of a good and faithful nurse, who could have carried him safely through his convalescence; and to whom, he really believed, he owed his recovery.

Upon this the doctor chuckled gleefully. Said he:

"Your Honor, I will prove by this man's own nurse, of whose faithfulness he boasts, that she considered him not entirely out of danger at the time of which he speaks—the time of the visits for which he refuses to pay."

The nurse was summoned forthwith, and she made her appearance and was sworn. She was a good-looking, kind-faced, intelligent woman—a widow of middle age, and of good standing in society.

"Mrs. Binker, you attended upon the defendant in this case, during his recent illness?"

"Yes, sir—I remember very well."

"And did you not think that, during that time, he required the attendance of a physician?"

"I did not, sir."

"Now! Did you not say, more than once, during that very time, that you considered your master to be in danger?"

"Yes, sir—I said that."

"And yet, you now tell us that he required no physician? I don't quite understand you."

"Well, sir," said Mrs. Binker, with a firm, steadfast look, "I think I can explain it. I said the man was in danger, because I considered any man to be in danger who a doctor was giving him medicine!"

Mrs. Binker was allowed to step down; and, in the end, the doctor was induced to cut his bill down one-half.

Editorial Excursions.

While the editorial buzzards are on the wing, and are sending the trail of a free excursion to gather up journalistic glory, the real doers of the field remain at home and solicit job work and subscriptions to furnish food and flannel for the children.—L.A.

There is an astonishingly large percentage of solid truth in the foregoing lines from an unbiassed editorial. As a general thing, when an editorial excursion, or raid, is made on the unfortunate inhabitants of a neighboring State, the editor himself, for the reasons so concisely given above, is unable to march in the procession, but he enjoys the excursion all the same. In fact, the editor who stays at home derives a great deal more solid comfort from the excursion than the editor who goes along with the mob. This may sound strange, but it is the truth, the whole truth, and we can prove it. We assert that the editor who stays at home, molding public opinion, and otherwise providing for his family, extracts more real enjoyment out of an excursion than the editor who burns over the country with the alleged excursionists, gnawing free beer, smoking free cigars, eating free meals, and having a free and easy time of it generally. We can prove what we say.

Every editorial excursion—and by the way there are no sanctums but editorial sanctums—every editorial excursion in the United States is infested by a so-called friend of the paper. He is a combination of the exchange fiend and the confidential bore. Every morning he drops in, hangs his feet up on the table where the exchanges are, and after he has stored his mind with useful newspaper lore, he tells the editor, confidentially, that his last week's paper was very poor; that some patrons of the paper think it was the poorest paper the editor has gotten out yet, and then he proceeds to inform the editor how the defect can be remedied. He winds up his caustic criticism by telling the editor that he would not talk to him that way if he was not a friend to the paper. There are some kind of bores that can be gotten rid of, but the candid friend of the paper cannot be shaken off any more than if he was a seed tick.

Now, when the editorial excursionists, as we have called them, the editor takes the friend of the paper aside, and says: "I have a personal favor to ask of you. You need a rest. You are overworked. I do not care to go on this editorial excursion, but I will give you my ticket, and you go along, and represent the paper." The eyes of the combined exchange fiend, confidential bore, and candid friend of the paper, fairly sparkle with delight. He promises, with tears in his eyes, to faithfully represent the paper on the excursion, and he keeps his promise with a fidelity that excites admiration, or rather awe, whenever he has an opportunity to eat or drink. During his absence, the real editor at home, in his sanctum, enjoys a most refreshing season of unalloyed bliss. His exchanges are never interfered with, and he is not reminded that his editorials are becoming poorer and poorer every issue. It will be admitted that, by staying at home, the editor has enjoyed the excursion much more than if he had actually accompanied the raiders, because they, the raiders, or excursionists, are nearly all substitutes, similar to the one we have described. Two-thirds of the editors have sent the sanctum bore to represent them, hence, if the editor in question had gone on the excursion, he would have been in the company, day and night, of thirty or forty of the most objectionable deceits in the State. Looked at from this standpoint, editorial excursions are a perfect godsend to the editors, as it enables them to get rid, temporarily at least, of the objectionable devil-fish that infest almost every sanctum, and who saps the humor and energy out of some of the best and brightest intellects of the press.—Texas Sift.

Briefs.

—Harry Anderson's orchestra plays for a party in Evansville this evening.

—Mrs. J. M. Haselton is visiting relatives and friends in Chicago this week.

—Wanted, a girl to do general housework, enquire of Mrs. Thomas Lappin.

—Captain Smith, of the Guards, desires a full attendance at the Armory tonight.

—R. R. Lee, C. N. Vankirk and Clarence L. Clark, went to Chicago to-day, to witness the May festival.

—The windmill at the park reservoir is being repaired and placed in position, which will soon furnish water for the park fountains.

—It is said that Mr. Lindsey Ward, who was married to Mrs. Irwin, of this city, last Sunday, made a handsome settlement of $30,000 on the bride.

—Miss Hattie Calkins, daughter of Colonel E. A. Calkins, of the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph, is in the city, the guest of Mrs. Will King, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson.

—Mrs. Fred Sonneborn started this morning for a visit with relatives and friends in New York city. Her little son and daughter accompany her. They will be absent all summer.

—The new rituals for the Third Degree work in the Old-Fellow's lodges have been received by the fraternity in the city. The new regulations will go into operation on the 1st of July next.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Benoit went to Milwaukee this forenoon, where they will visit relatives for a few days. They will then take up their residence in Chicago for the summer, where Mr. Benoit will find employment in a shoe factory.

—Messrs. Edwards and Phillips sold to S. S. Merrill, general manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, through Hon. C. H. Larkin, a beautiful pair of carriage horses, for which a very handsome price was paid. The horses were shipped to Milwaukee to-day.

Those of our citizens who desire a cheap trip to Milwaukee will remember the excursion of the Rockford Germania society on Sunday. The train will leave Janesville at 8:15 a. m. on Sunday, and returning will leave Milwaukee at 7 p. m. Round trip, two dollars. Tickets for sale at King's bookstore.

—The fire department of this city will turn out in full numbers on Tuesday next and participate in the ceremonies of Decoration Day. It is not expected that they will march to the cemetery, but will remain in the procession until it reaches Dr. Loomis' residence, when they will fall out of line.

—The Rev. Jenk L. Jones returned to Chicago to-day. He will sail for Europe on the 31st of June and will go direct to Wales. He will do a good deal of foot traveling in that country and England, after which he will go to Paris, then to Switzerland and a portion of Germany. He will be absent about three months and a half, and will be accompanied on his journeyings by a ministerial friend who lives in Cleveland.

—Conductor Sam Nessing, who has had charge of the Air Line passenger train since the resignation of "Dave" Curtis, resigned his position this morning to give Charles X. Smith the place, such having been the order of the magistrates at headquarters. Mr. Nessing leaves the train in good hands, and with a consciousness of having done his duty in that position faithfully and to the satisfaction of a discriminating public and a strict management. He will probably be given a passenger train on the old line, running from Oshkosh to Janesville. Mr. Smith is an old conductor, has many friends in the city, his home, and will doubtless prove as accommodating and popular as his predecessor. —Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

—The decoration committees from the various churches held a meeting at the Baptist church parlors last evening, at which arrangements for the decoration of the graves in the cemetery were made. The Grand Army Post was solicited to furnish the required number of wooden crosses, etc., etc., for use on that occasion; the aid of the Sunday school scholars was solicited to furnish flowers, and deliver the same at Court Street church on 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning; Mrs. M. D. McHenry, Mrs. Ira Milmore, Mrs. H. G. Arnold, Mrs. E. E. Loomis and Miss Ella De Bann were appointed to head the several divisions of decorators, and each of the above ladies were requested to select six young misses to assist each, selecting the daughters of soldiers, if practicable, and to meet at the Baptist church parlors on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock to complete the arrangements. A general invitation was extended to all who felt inclined to come forward on Tuesday morning and assist in arranging the flowers.

PUBLIC WEDDINGS.

HELMES-LIBBEY.

The marriage of Mr. Walter Helms and Miss Abbie H. Libbey, both of this city, was celebrated at All Souls Church last evening, the ceremony taking place at eight o'clock. The general invitation extended to the friends of the contracting parties, had the effect to draw to the church a gathering far beyond the capacity of the church to contain. At the appointed hour the bridal party entered the church, the organist, Miss Clara Reed, playing the Swedish Wedding March. The Rev. Jenk L. Jones, of Chicago, performed the ceremony, during which the bride and groom stood under a large and handsome arch of flowers and evergreens, made by Mrs. F. C. Cook, Miss Mary Godden, and Miss Rosalia Hatherell. At the close of the service the bridal party retired to the parlors of the church, in the meantime the organist playing Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The bridesmaids on this occasion were Miss Maud Crane, and Miss Ella Libbey, who like the bride were arrayed in white, and the groomsmen were Mr. Leon Libbey, and Mr. George Crane; and the ushers were Mr. J. D. Holmes, Mr. Edward Church, and Mr. Edward Putnam.

In the church parlors a general reception was held where the bride and groom received the hearty felicitations of a host of friends. Tables were spread and refreshments served which added to the variety and interest of the occasion. The bride and groom have lived in Janesville for many years, are well known, and there are many here who will wish them a long life and happy union.

A large number of presents, useful and ornamental, were received, as will be seen from the following list:

MARSHALL-O'ROURKE.

St. Mary's Catholic church was the scene of a very happy event at 7:30 o'clock last evening, it being the celebration of the marriage ceremony which made Mr. John Marshall and Miss Kate O'Rourke man and wife. The service was performed by Rev. Father Munich, in the presence of a large number of the intimate friends of the contracting parties, Miss Mary O'Rourke, a sister of the bride, acting as bridesmaid, and Mr. John Woods being the groomsmen. The bride was dressed in a beautiful navy blue silk, cut en train, with cream lace at the throat and wrists, and to adopt the language of the young ladies present, she "looked just splendid." The ceremony at the church being concluded, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Rourke, on North Bluff street, where the reception was held, and congratulations were showered upon the happy couple by their hundreds of friends who had congregated for that purpose.

It was a late hour in the evening when the festivities of the happy event were brought to a close, and many well wishes for the long continuance of their wedded life so happily commenced, were received. Many tokens of respect and esteem were left with the newly wedded pair by their friends, among which are the following:
